

VIEWS

Spring 2019 Issue 36 Volume 2

Translation and Review

EXCLUSIVE!

Bike Across America for ASDC

FEATURES

Interim CEO Charity Warigon
2019 National Conference Update
Interpreting the Legal System
Competence in Translation

Rachel Coleman

is the executive director of the American Society for Deaf Children (www.deafchildren.org), the oldest national organization founded by and governed by parents of deaf children. She is best known as the Emmy award-nominated host and creator of "Signing Time!," the American Sign Language vocabulary building series, broadcast on PBS stations, Netflix, Nick Jr., and www.mysigningtime.com. Coleman and her husband, Aaron, reside in Cottonwood Heights, Utah, with their youngest child, Lucy, who has spina bifida and cerebral palsy. Their oldest child, Leah, is a senior at the National Technical Institute for the Deaf/Rochester Institute of Technology majoring in individualized studies with the concentrations of deaf cultural studies, design, and social inequalities.

Rachel Coleman
Executive Director, ASDC

Korhonen family

Faces of ASDC

Ackerman family

Rudolph family

SignOn with ASDC

SignOn is a virtual immersion program that lets you practice your ASL live with a Deaf adult from the comfort of your own computer. Five (30) minute sessions (a $125 value) gets you...

- One-on-one practice and personalized feedback
- Choose your own topics, personalized to your needs and skill
- Enjoy flexible scheduling – sessions available 7 days a week
- Watch your video sessions again any time to review
- Start right away with an easy-to-use platform

Huot family

Jablonka family

Join these families in experiencing the life changing opportunities that ASDC offers! Become a member of ASDC by visiting deafchildren.org, or learn more about how you can support this incredible organization below:

Hay family

Ferrell family

Donate Today

Mather family